This is a really cool activity. Challenging students to free write or be given a specic topic to write about. I think this would be a great oportunity for students to participate in and build writing skills. What do you think? Is there a way to use this writing challenge in your classroom, with your content? I would try a daily writing prompt, for a starter, based on a random topic. I think being able to write and keep the flow is a critical writing skill and would be a beneficial task for students to partcipate in, no matter what grade-level or subject area. Writing is a real-life skill and ...
